PENNIES FOR CHARITY

ANNUAL REPORT ON TELEMARKETING CAMPAIGNS IN NEW YORK

Last year, for-profit telemarketers registered in New York reported raising more than $302 million for charity, a 20 percent increase over the previous year and the most ever reported in the history of the New York Attorney General’s annual report, Pennies for Charity. Of those funds donated in 2013, $146 million went to organizations’ charitable missions, or about 48 percent of the total money raised. This is an increase from 2012, when 37 percent of the funds raised went to the charitable missions to which donors intended to contribute. It is also the highest percentage of total funds raised by telemarketers that went to charity in the last twelve years. Nevertheless, donors should know that less than half of the money they contribute through telemarketers is going to the charitable causes they seek to support.

Despite improvements in the share of funds going to charitable purposes, telemarketing remains an expensive method of raising funds for charity and suffers from significant limitations compared to other forms of fundraising:

- Telemarketing encourages “me-too” charities, which sound like respected and effective charities, but are much less effective. For example: the well-known “Make-a-Wish Foundations” and the me-too “Kids Wish Network,” which pays out more than two thirds of its telemarketing revenue to fundraisers.
- The typically anonymous telephone interaction between telemarketer staff, often located at a remote call center, and the donor facilitates fraud and misrepresentation by a telemarketer.
- Many charities need to monitor the fundraisers they engage and hold them accountable. The Attorney General has found a number of fundraisers with significant histories of violations that continue to secure fundraising contracts. For example, InfoCision, Inc., which has compliance agreements with multiple states arising out of its improper conduct and recently settled a class action misrepresentation suit, filed with the Charities Bureau reports related to 41 campaigns conducted in 2013 for individual charities. In 31 of the 41 reports, InfoCision retained over 50 percent of the receipts. InfoCision is among the biggest players in the for-profit telemarketing industry.

New York is the Silicon Valley of not-for-profits:

New Yorkers, like other Americans, are generous with their money and time in support of charities and causes in which they believe—and they have become more generous each year. Researchers report that charitable giving has nearly doubled in real terms since 1990, and that growth in charitable gifts of money roughly doubled the growth of the Standard and Poor index since 1968.

As New Yorkers, we benefit from this robust giving. We have the highest total number and the second-highest work force percentage of not-for-profit employees in the country. They work in the nation's leading hospitals; universities and colleges; foundations; social service and advocacy organizations; churches and religious charities; nonprofit housing groups; arts, history, and cultural institutions; and world-renowned museums. New Yorkers also donate their money and time to thousands of religious and community groups (over 3,000 in the Bronx alone) that provide help for their neighbors through after-school programs, job training and placement, food banks, meals to homebound adults, and arts and music programs.

New York's nonprofit sector is recognized as a national and international leader, attracting tens of thousands of students and adults from around the nation and the world who are interested in learning not only what New York charities do, but how they do it. Some take what they have learned and apply it when they return home; others spend their careers here, or bring nonprofit innovations to government and for-profit entities. New York is the Silicon Valley of not-for-profits—a source of job opportunities for New Yorkers, and innovation and positive social change worldwide.

- As of 2010, over 18 percent of New York private sector employment was in not-for-profits, which employed more than 1.25 million workers and paid out more than $57 billion in wages.¹
- In New York, the job count at nonprofits grew by 17 percent from 2000 to 2010. By contrast, the state's for-profit sector lost 6 percent of its jobs over the same decade.

As the chief law enforcement officer and regulator overseeing charitable fundraising in New York State, Attorney General Eric T. Schneiderman has made it a priority to protect donors and the charities they support, strengthen public confidence in these organizations, and ensure that contributions assist those in need of support.

One way that Attorney General Schneiderman achieves these goals is by promoting transparency and shining a spotlight on how charitable contributions are spent. For example, in July 2013, the Attorney General's office published a report, Charitable Response to Hurricane Sandy, which provides the public with detailed information on how Hurricane Sandy relief funds were spent. This was followed by another report, on the second anniversary of the hurricane in October 2014, identifying leading charities involved in the Hurricane Sandy response, and amounts spent on their relief efforts. The Attorney General's office also developed and advocated the passage of the Nonprofit Revitalization Act of 2013, which includes numerous provisions to improve nonprofit governance and accountability in New York.

Pennies for Charity is another important tool for transparency because it informs the donating public which portion of their charitable contributions made through telemarketers went to the outside fundraisers' fees and expenses, and how much was left to support charitable programs and their administration. This report focuses specifically on charities that engage for-profit fundraisers and solicitors to contact members of the public through telemarketing, and the for-profit organizations that provide telemarketing services. The report finds that 48 percent of funds contributed through telemarketers went to charitable purposes. Some charities did much worse.

Regulation of Telemarketing Solicitation – Rules Donors Should Know

The constitutional rules governing charities solicitation, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, are clear.²

- 1) Charitable solicitation is protected by the First Amendment. States cannot prohibit charitable solicitation, and cannot impose limitations inconsistent with First Amendment protections.
- 2) Charitable organizations and their for-profit fundraisers cannot make false, misleading or deceptive statements to individuals or households in connection with fundraising activities, and the Attorney General can investigate and prosecute false, deceptive, or misleading statements in connection with fundraising.
- 3) “Do Not Call” regulations are subject to constitutional limitations. Putting your name on the Federal Communications Commission’s “Do Not Call” list will not bar calls “on behalf of tax-exempt non-profit organizations.” Charities that are calling on their own behalf to solicit charitable contributions are not covered by the requirements of the national “Do Not Call” registry. However, if a third-party telemarketer is calling on behalf of a charity, a consumer may ask not to receive any more calls from or on behalf of that specific charity. If a third-party telemarketer calls again on behalf of that charity, the telemarketer may be subject to a fine of up to $16,000.³
- 4) As New York has done, states can also require telemarketers to disclose to those called (a) the name of the individual telemarketer, (b) that the solicitation is being conducted by a professional fundraising company, (c) the name of that company, and (d) that the telemarketer is being paid to make the call.⁴

⁴ NY Executive Law 174-b(3).

- 5) States cannot require disclosures by charities' fundraisers of the percentage of funds they keep as part of the solicitation to individuals or households that are being solicited.⁵
- 6) States cannot ban or sanction charitable solicitation based upon the percentage of funds kept by the charitable solicitors.⁶
- 7) States can require disclosure in regulatory reporting to the Attorney General about sources and uses of funds raised by charities, and the identity of individuals and for-profit entities engaged in fundraising. New York is a leader in requiring such disclosure. Attorney General Schneiderman publishes this Pennies for Charity report every year from those disclosures. The report is based upon the information self-reported by charities and fundraisers.

Highlights of Enforcement Actions by the Attorney General

- 1) During 2013 and 2014, the Attorney General has investigated and obtained settlement agreements with organizations engaged in false, misleading, and deceptive solicitations, including an agreement with Quadriga Arts and related companies in the nation's largest ever settlement with a fundraiser.⁷
- 2) In February 2014, the office reached a $500,000 settlement that included permanently shuttering three Long Island-based charities: the Bi-County Helpline for Abuse Against Women and Children, Long Island Responds, and Breast Cancer Funds for Research. The settlement also mandated closure of professional fundraiser Mure Associates, and bars accounting firm Portfolio Planners from providing services to New York-registered nonprofits.
- 3) In April 2014, the office reached a $50,000 settlement with Mark Gelvan, a telemarketer whose New Jersey-based companies solicit charitable donations, for violating a 2004 order that barred him from raising money for charity in New York State.

The Attorney General needs the help of citizens and organizations to identify individuals and organizations that fail to fulfill their legal responsibilities, or that take advantage of vulnerable or unsuspecting donors. This office asks that members of the public and organizations who become aware of false, misleading, or deceptive solicitations report them to the Charities Bureau, which works with consumer protection organizations to identify and investigate allegations of false or misleading solicitations. FINDINGS

This report includes data from 573 campaigns conducted in 2013 by telemarketers registered to solicit charitable contributions in New York. All of the figures reported were taken directly from reports filed by the telemarketers and signed by representatives of both the telemarketers and the charities. The campaigns raised over $302 million. Key findings include:

- $156.1 million, or 51.6 percent, of the funds raised by telemarketers in 2013 were paid to fundraisers for fees and/or used to cover the costs of conducting the campaigns. Charities retained $146.5 million, or 48.4 percent, of the total funds raised in the campaigns.
- In 435 of the 573 campaigns, or 75.9 percent, the charities retained less than 50 percent of the funds raised, or expenses exceeded contributions (meaning the charities actually lost money).
 - In 282 of the 573 campaigns, or 49.2 percent, the charities retained less than 30 percent of the funds raised, or expenses exceeded contributions.
 - In 101 of the 573 campaigns, or 17.6 percent, expenses exceeded contributions.
 - Of the 573 campaigns, 316 were conducted on behalf of organizations located outside of New York.
 - The top five campaigns by gross receipts account for $84.2 million, or 27.8 percent, of all funds raised.

Top Five Reported Telemarketing Campaigns in 2013 by Gross Receipts
Charitable Organization	Professional Fundraiser	Gross Receipts (millions)	Net to Charity (millions)	% to Charity
Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, Inc.	InfoCision, Inc.	$50.6	$50.4	99.67% ⁸
National Rifle Association of America	InfoCision, Inc.	$12.0	$4.9	40.59%
Children's Cancer Recovery Foundation	Associated Community Services, Inc.	$7.5	$3.4	44.99%
American Heart Association, Inc.	InfoCision, Inc.	$7.1	$4.4	61.94%
March of Dimes Foundation	InfoCision, Inc.	$7.0	$3.8	54.45%

⁸ Unlike most telemarketing campaigns, this percentage was likely the result of work done by unpaid volunteers rather than InfoCision's paid telemarketers.

* 101 telemarketing campaigns reported a loss to the charity. This can occur when the fundraising contract does not guarantee the charity a specific dollar amount or specific percentage of the gross receipts, including when fundraising is incidental to the telemarketing campaign, or when the contract does not hold the charity harmless for expenses/fees that exceed the gross amount contributed.

GEOGRAPHICAL AREA

Based upon the address contained in documents filed with the Charities Bureau, each charitable organization listed in this report has been assigned to a particular geographic area. The following is a list of these geographic areas, the counties included in each area, total gross dollars raised on behalf of charities located in each area, and the net amount received by these charitable organizations:

TIPS BEFORE GIVING

In addition to annually issuing the Pennies for Charity report, the Attorney General's staff works year-round to ensure that donors are protected, charitable assets are preserved, and those who depend on charity receive what generous New Yorkers and others have donated. Information about the Attorney General's enforcement actions, as well as guidance for charities and tips for consumers, is posted on the Internet at: www.CharitiesNYS.com.

The website also includes an online registry where you can find the annual financial reports of registered charities, links to "watchdog" organizations that evaluate charities, and online tutorials.

If you receive a call from a telemarketer, do not feel pressured to give over the phone. You can just say no! If you choose not to hang up, you should ask the caller:

- What programs are conducted by the charity?
- How much of your donation will be used for charitable programs?
- Is the caller a paid telemarketer? (By law, you should be told the name of the professional fundraiser conducting the campaign, and that the caller is being paid for making the call.)
- How much is the telemarketer being paid and how much is the charity guaranteed?

Also remember:

- Only give to charities with which you are familiar.
- Do not give a credit card number to an unknown caller.
- Be wary of callers who pressure you to give or say they will send someone to your house to pick up a contribution. Worthy charities should give you time to make up your mind.
- Screen calls if you wish to avoid answering calls from telemarketers.
- If you receive a call from a telemarketer or directly from a charity, you may ask to be placed on a do-not-call list of a specific charity.
- If you are suspicious that a charity or a telemarketer is abusive, send a complaint to the Attorney General's Charities Bureau. You may register a complaint by filling out a form at: http://www.charitiesnys.com/complaints_new.jsp or emailing the Charities Bureau directly at: charities.bureau@ag.ny.gov.

A REMINDER FOR CHARITIES

One of a charitable organization's most valuable assets is its name. A charity should not jeopardize its reputation by permitting a telemarketer to speak on its behalf without carefully reviewing how the campaign will be conducted and what will be said about the charity and its programs, and then monitoring the telemarketer's activities. In addition, before engaging a telemarketer, a charitable organization should:

- Review this report and previous Pennies for Charities reports.
- Obtain bids from several telemarketers to maximize funds for charitable programs.
- Talk with other charities that have used the fundraiser to find out about their experiences.
- Explore other means of raising funds that may be more lucrative.
- Ensure that the agreement with the telemarketer is in the charity's best interest. It is the responsibility of the charity's officers and directors to make sure that its contracts are fair and reasonable, and that the charity receives all funds due to it.
- Always review the content of any material using the charity's name, especially scripts used by the telemarketer.
- Monitor the campaign to make sure that the telemarketers are properly describing the organization and its programs.
- Get periodic financial reports from the fundraiser.
- Find out if any legal action has been taken against the telemarketer due to its fundraising activities.
- Review the fundraiser's financial report (Form CHAR037), which must be signed by both the charity and the fundraiser before it is filed with the Charities Bureau.

Charitable organizations are also encouraged to read the Charities Bureau's pamphlet, Hiring a Professional Fundraiser: What Charities Need to Know, which is posted under Guides and Publications at: www.CharitiesNYS.com.

HOW THIS REPORT WAS PREPARED

The data in this report were obtained solely from financial reports filed with the Attorney General's Charities Bureau by professional fundraisers registered in New York to conduct telemarketing campaigns on behalf of charitable organizations during 2013.⁹ Those reports are either closing financial statements submitted after completion of a telemarketing campaign, or interim financial statements submitted annually for campaigns conducted for a period longer than one year.¹⁰ Each filed report must be signed by both the professional fundraiser and the charitable organization it represents. All of the charities listed in the report conducted telemarketing fundraising campaigns in New York State.¹¹ However, the amounts reported reflect the total amount of money raised and not just what was raised in New York.

The report includes seven tables:

- Table 1 lists the charitable organizations in alphabetical order, the professional fundraisers that conducted each organization's telemarketing campaign, the geographical location of each charity, whether the filing submitted was an interim or closing statement, the total amount raised in each campaign, the amount each charity retained, the amount of any uncollected pledges, and the percentage of the total raised that each charity retained. If a charity engaged more than one telemarketer, each campaign is listed separately.
- Table 2 is similar to Table 1 and organized alphabetically by professional fundraiser name first.
- Table 3 is similar to Table 1 and organized by percentage retained by charity in descending order.
- Table 4 is similar to Table 1 and organized by charity name and geographical location.
- Table 5 presents the total amount raised and retained by each charity in all of its 2013 campaigns in descending order by total percentage retained by the charity.
- Table 6 presents the total amount that each professional fundraiser raised in its campaigns in 2013 and the total amount that was retained by its client charities in

⁹ Registration of professional fundraisers is required by Article 7-A of New York's Executive Law. Registration should not be construed as approval or endorsement by the Attorney General of any professional fundraiser or the accuracy or completeness of the information contained in any filed financial report.

¹⁰ Readers should be aware that the final figures and ratios may change when a campaign has been completed and all income and expenses are reported.

¹¹ Information for an additional 17 telemarketing campaigns conducted during 2013 had not been submitted prior to the preparation of this report.

descending order by the percentage retained by the charities.

- Table 7 contains contact information for the professional fundraisers, as provided by them to the Charities Bureau.

Uncollected pledges to a charity are not reported as part of the total amount raised, but are reported in a separate column in each table.¹² Non-monetary contributions are not covered in this report.

¹² An uncollected pledge is a promised contribution that the charity has not received by the date of filing a professional fundraiser's financial report. The charity may never receive uncollected pledges. In some campaigns, a donor may agree to pay a specified amount over a period of months or years. Reports of such campaigns will often show a large amount in the Uncollected Pledges column and small amounts in the Net to Charity and % to Charity columns. In each table, a $0.00 in the Uncollected Pledges column indicates that there were no uncollected pledges reported on the respective financial report or that there were no uncollected outstanding pledges as of the date on which the fundraiser filed the report.
