Paid Summer Placement for Graduate Students | Application Deadline is February 27, 2026***

The Office of the New York State Attorney General's (OAG) Environmental Protection Bureau (EPB) in New York City is seeking applications from graduate students for paid science/policy placements during the 2026 Summer Program. EPB is responsible for enforcing state and federal environmental laws and takes legal action on behalf of the people of New York to protect the public health and environment. The bureau defends state agencies when their regulatory efforts are challenged in court. The bureau's legal and scientific staff also investigate and respond to citizen complaints, participate in community engagement, and prepare reports, brochures, and other information for the public on environmental issues. In its work, EPB prioritizes reducing environmental and health disparities, and promoting environmental justice in New York.

Students will assist staff in addressing scientific and policy aspects of pertinent environmental and public health issues. Responsibilities include researching issues on the internet, in journals, and scientific literature; procuring information and conducting scientific and data analyses; reviewing and evaluating laws, legislation, and regulations; drafting scientific and policy analyses of issues and providing related written and oral briefings for staff; drafting reports, whitepapers, and factsheets; and supporting the activities of legal staff. GIS skills are especially desirable.

In addition, students may gain experience working with federal, state, and local government agency staff, non-profit environmental and community-based organizations, and experts. In the past, students have worked on issues regarding climate change, hazardous and solid waste management, toxic air emissions, public health, sustainability and energy related matters, drinking water quality, wetland management, and many others. Students work closely with the bureau's Chief Scientist and Policy Advisor, and other legal and scientific staff who will provide them with mentoring, guidance, and advice to support their learning and professional development.

Key qualities of candidates include a strong background in science and/or public policy, intellectual curiosity, strong initiative, self-motivation and work independence, superior writing and communication skills, and a commitment to environmental and public health protection, and social justice.

Summer Program Details

- The format of this placement is hybrid. Students report to their designated workstation two or three (2-3) days per week. On the days students work remotely, they need a reliable computer, a secure internet connection, a phone, and a sufficiently quiet and private workspace to telework.
- At the time students receive and accept a paid placement offer, they must provide written documentation demonstrating they are full-time students in good academic standing as defined by their schools. Applications from students who will be starting college/university during the 2026 fall semester will not be considered.
- The summer program will officially run from May 18 – July 10, 2026. Students hired for the program must be available to work 30-37.5 hours/week during their placement for a total of 300 approved work hours.
- The selected student will be hired as a student assistant and paid the graduate hourly pay rate of $19.38.
- *Applications are accepted online until February 27, 2026, and paid placement offers are made on a rolling basis.
- United States (U.S.) citizenship and New York state residency are not required, but applicants must be eligible to be employed in the U.S.
- Applicants are encouraged to learn more about OAG bureaus and regional offices prior to submitting their applications by reviewing information that is available on the public website.

*Candidates from diverse backgrounds are encouraged to apply.
The OAG is an equal opportunity employer and is committed to workplace diversity.*
