

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK CIVIL RIGHTS BUREAU

In the Matter of:

THE INVESTIGATION BY ERIC T. SCHNEIDERMAN,
ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,
OF

PATRICIA EMPLOYMENT AGENCY CORP. and LUIS RUIZ

AOD No. 14-130

ASSURANCE OF DISCONTINUANCE
EXECUTIVE LAW
63(15)

In January 2013, the Office of the Attorney General of the State of New York (“OAG”) began to investigate, pursuant to the provisions of Section 63(12) of the New York State Executive Law, whether Patricia Employment Agency Corp. (“Patricia”) and Luis Ruiz (“Ruiz,” and together with Patricia, “Respondents”) engaged in unlawful discrimination against job seekers; referred job seekers to positions paying less than minimum wage; charged excessive or non-refundable referral fees; and failed to meet recordkeeping and other statutory requirements, in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq.; the New York State Human Rights Law, N.Y. Exec. L. § 290 et seq.; the New York City Human Rights Law, N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-101 et seq.; the Minimum Wage Act, N.Y. Lab. L. § 650 et seq.; and Article 11 of the New York General Business Law, N.Y. Gen. Bus. L. § 170 et seq.

Numerous employment agencies have targeted immigrant communities in New York City with predatory business practices and discriminatory recruiting tactics, exploiting vulnerable workers seeking low-wage work. The OAG has found that Respondents targeted such practices at job seekers in the immigrant and ethnic enclave of Jackson Heights, Queens, by referring them to below-minimum wage jobs, charging unlawful referral fees, and unlawfully discriminating against them based on their national origin, gender, and age. In addition, Respondents acceded to the discriminatory preferences of employers by making job referrals and assignments on the basis of a job applicant's national origin, gender or age.

This Assurance of Discontinuance contains the OAG's findings in connection with its investigation of Respondents and the resolution agreed to by the OAG and Respondents (together, the "Parties").

II.
FINDINGS

Applicable Laws

- 2. Title VII provides that “[i]t shall be an unlawful employment practice for an employment agency to fail or refuse to refer for employment, or otherwise to discriminate against, any individual because of his . . . sex, or national origin, or to classify or refer for employment any individual on the basis of his . . . sex, or national origin.” 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(b).
- 3. NYSHRL and NYCHRL provide that “[i]t shall be an unlawful discriminatory practice . . . [f]or an employment agency to discriminate against any individual” because of age, national origin, or sex “in receiving, classifying, disposing or otherwise acting upon applications for its services or in referring an applicant or applicants to an employer.” N.Y. Exec. L. § 296(1)(b); N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-107(1)(b).
- 4. NYSHRL and NYCHRL further provide that “[i]t shall be an unlawful discriminatory practice . . . [f]or any . . . employment agency to print or circulate . . . any statement, advertisement or publication, or to use any form of application for employment or to make any inquiry in connection with prospective employment, which expresses directly or indirectly, any limitation, specification or discrimination” as to age, national origin, or sex, “or any intent to make any such limitation, specification or discrimination.” N.Y. Exec. L. § 296(1)(d); N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-107(1)(d).

5. The Minimum Wage Act provides that “[n]o employment agency shall place or attempt to place any employee in an occupation at less than the wage applicable to such occupation under” the Minimum Wage Act. N.Y. Lab. L. § 664. The basic hourly minimum wage in New York State was $7.25 between January 1, 2011, and December 30, 2013. As of December 31, 2013, the minimum wage is $8.00. The minimum wage will rise to $8.75 as of December 31, 2014, and $9.00 as of December 31, 2015. 12 NYCRR § 146-1.2. For tipped food service workers (including wait staff, bussers, and bartenders), the hourly minimum wage may be as low as $5.00, as long as the employer meets statutory requirements and the wages plus tips actually received equal or exceed the basic hourly minimum wage. For tipped service employees (including delivery persons), the hourly minimum wage may be as low as $5.65, as long as the employer meets statutory requirements and the wages plus tips actually received equal or exceed the basic hourly minimum wage. 12 NYCRR § 146-1.3.
6. The Employment Agency Law prohibits an employment agency from sending “any person to an employer where the employment agency knows, or reasonably should have known, that the prospective employment is or would be in violation of state or federal laws governing minimum wages.” N.Y. Gen. Bus. L. § 187(5).
7. The Employment Agency Law also governs the referral fees that may be charged by an employment agency. An employment agency may collect an advance fee

- from an applicant for domestic or untrained work, but the fee cannot exceed 10% of the first full month's salary where no meals or lodging are provided, 12% of the first full month's salary where one meal per working day is provided, 14% of the first full month's salary where two meals per working day are provided, or 18% where three meals and lodging per working day are provided. § 185(2), (4).
8. Any excess over the lawful fee amount must be returned within seven days after receiving a demand therefor, and without demand immediately after the employment agency has been notified that employment has been obtained. §§ 185(3), 186(1).
 9. Even if not excessive, the entire advance fee must be returned immediately upon demand if at the time a demand is made employment has not yet been obtained. § 185(3).
 10. If a job applicant accepts employment and fails to report to work, the gross fee charged to such applicant shall not exceed 25% of the maximum lawful fee. If a job applicant accepts employment and reports for work, and such employment is terminated without fault of the employee, the gross fee charged to such employee shall not exceed 10% of the salary or wages actually received by such employee, and in no event shall such fee exceed the maximum lawful fee. § 186(2)-(3).
 11. The Employment Agency Law also sets forth the recordkeeping requirements for employment agencies. An employment agency must maintain a register of employer and applicant information containing certain statutorily required information with respect to each applicant that is referred to a job and each employer to whom an applicant is referred. § 179.

12. An employment agency must enter into a job referral contract with any applicant referred to a job, must retain all such contracts for a statutorily prescribed period, and must give the applicant a copy of the contract, which must include a statement setting forth in a clear and concise manner the provisions of sections 185 and 186 of the General Business Law. § 181(1), (4).
13. An employment agency must create a receipt for any fee charged to an applicant, and must provide to the applicant a copy of the receipt, which must contain certain statutorily prescribed information. § 181(3)-(4).

B.
Background

14. Patricia is a domestic corporation with its principal place of business located at 89-18 Roosevelt Avenue, 2nd Floor, Jackson Heights, New York. Patricia operates an employment agency doing business as Patricia Employment Agency.
15. Ruiz resides at 31-23 68th Street, Woodside, New York. Ruiz is the sole owner of Patricia, and is also an owner of another employment agency, Napoli Employment Agency, located at 79-11 Roosevelt Avenue, Flushing, New York. Ruiz is originally from Ecuador and speaks Spanish.
16. Ruiz operates Patricia and trains and supervises a secretary, who assists him by interacting with employers and job applicants, including speaking in Spanish when necessary. Ruiz also reviews and maintains Patricia's records.
17. Patricia is located in Jackson Heights, where there are significant Hispanic and Asian immigrant communities. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's 2012 American Community Survey Five-Year Estimates, over 60% of the population of Jackson Heights is foreign-born, with the vast majority emigrating from Latin America. The largest national origin groups among the Hispanic population are Ecuadorian, Colombian, Mexican, Dominican, and Puerto Rican.

18. Patricia solicits business from job applicants by local in-person marketing, including distributing Spanish-language business cards stating that the agency has restaurant, deli, factory, laundry, cleaning, and construction jobs available. Over half of Patricia's customers are Spanish speakers. Most of Patricia's customers seek job placement in the food service industry or other untrained work.

C.
Violations of Law

19. Respondents violated Title VII, NYSHRL, and NYCHRL by discriminating against job applicants on account of national origin.
20. The OAG reviewed documents and evidence which revealed that during interviews, Respondents systematically asked applicants to provide their national origin and recorded this information. For example, all of Respondents' job contracts had handwritten notes on the reverse side—such as “Guatemala,” “Mexico,” or “El Salvador”—reflecting the national origin of job applicants.
21. In addition, the OAG reviewed evidence which revealed that Respondents would match applicants to jobs based on their national origin when they received such requests from employers. If an employer requested that referred applicants be of a certain national origin, Respondents would accommodate the discriminatory requests of these employers by using their handwritten notes on the job contracts to refer applicants.

22. National origin was not a bona fide occupational qualification for any of these jobs, most of which were in the food service industry. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(b); N.Y. Exec. L. § 296(1)(b), (d); N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-107(1)(b), (d).
23. Respondents violated Title VII, NYSHRL, and NYCHRL by discriminating against job seekers on account of gender.
24. The OAG reviewed documents and evidence which revealed that Respondents regularly received listings for positions from employers that requested a specified gender. Respondents noted these preferences in their records in order to match applicants to jobs where employers had requested applicants of a specific gender. For example, Respondents' job register reflected employer requests such as "counter lady," "counter man," "salad girl," "salad man," and "female cook."
25. The vast majority of applicants actually placed in such jobs were of the gender preferred by the employer.
26. Gender was not a bona fide occupational qualification for any of these jobs, most of which were in the food service industry. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(b); N.Y. Exec. L. § 296(1)(b), (d); N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-107(1)(b), (d).
27. Respondents violated Title VII, NYSHRL, and NYCHRL by discriminating against job seekers on account of age.
28. The OAG reviewed documents and evidence which revealed that during interviews, Respondents systematically asked applicants to provide their age and recorded this information. For example, all of Respondents' job contracts had handwritten notes on the reverse side—such as "21 years" or "39 years"—reflecting the age of job applicants.

29. In addition, the OAG reviewed evidence which revealed that Respondents would match applicants to jobs based on their age when they received such requests from employers. If an employer required that referred applicants be of a certain age or age range, Respondents would consult their handwritten notes on the job contracts and refer only applicants of the requested age or age range.
30. Age was not a bona fide occupational qualification for any of these jobs, most of which were in the food service industry. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(b); N.Y. Exec. L. § 296(1)(b), (d); N.Y.C. Admin. Code § 8-107(1)(b), (d).
31. Respondents violated the Minimum Wage Act and the Employment Agency Law by referring applicants to jobs paying less than the applicable minimum hourly wage. See N.Y. Lab. L. § 664; 12 NYCRR §§ 146-1.2 to -1.3; N.Y. Gen. Bus. L. § 187(5).
32. Respondents violated the Employment Agency Law by charging excessive advance fees. Respondents charged a flat advance fee of $120, which did not vary depending on the anticipated wage of the job or whether meals or lodging are provided. N.Y. Gen. Bus. L. § 185(2), (4).
33. Respondents violated the Employment Agency Law by failing to provide refunds of advance fees as required by law. Respondents did not provide any refund if an employee had worked more than eight days at a job, notwithstanding the amount of salary or wages actually earned. Respondents have never refunded the excessive portion of any fee charged. §§ 185(3), 186(2)-(3).
34. In addition, the OAG's investigation revealed that, while Respondents' job referral contract set forth in writing that applicants have a right to a refund of the referral fee, Respondents' staff told job applicants that the fee was non-refundable, and regularly failed to provide applicants with a copy of the contract setting forth Respondents' purported refund policy.

35. Respondents violated the Employment Agency Law by failing to comply with certain recordkeeping requirements, including the requirement to note the purpose of the advance fee on receipts, and by failing to provide applicants with a copy of the job referral contract. §§ 179, 181(1), (3)-(4).
